Type : kayak

Description

Giving the general public the chance to explore a particular natural environment is an effective way of raising awareness of the need to protect it. This vision has always been a driving force for the National Parks. It is also the driving force of TamTam Pagaie. Franck, a kayak enthusiast, shares his professional awareness with you, so that you don't miss the amazing wealth of the mangroves, and the islets of the Grand Cul de Sac Marin lagoon. Pelicans, frigate birds as well as the mangroves and fauna: you will be shown it all in a respectful way, since the kayak makes very little direct impact on the environment. Follow the guide, listen to his explanations and you will understand the importance of the protection and preservation of mangroves for the Guadeloupe area.

Franck will accompany you during your kayak trip, departing from Sainte-Rose. You head for the open sea so as to reach the islets, in which you will explore the mangroves and their indigenous wildlife. You will then go to l'Îlet Blanc, for your initiation into bird-watching. A swim will be the reward for your efforts.
